

1 July 1919	On this day, this photograph was taken of 20-year old nurse Ivy Preddy. She worked at the No. 8 Australian General Hospital in South Terrace during WWI.	Image 2814
2 July 1946	On this day, Royal Netherlands Navy submarine Tijgerhain was docked in Fremantle. It was formerly the British T Class submarine, Tarn .	Image 3410
3 July 1940	On this day, Pioneer Reserve was officially opened. This image depicts James Moore, headmaster of Beaconsfield Primary School, planting a tree for the occasion.	Image 1759C
4 July 1884	On this day, the Old Court House opened on the corner of Marine Terrace and Mouat Street. It was built by J.J. Harwood and Son, commencing in May 1883. The walls were over a metre thick and there were basement cells. This photograph was taken in circa 1973.	Image 788A
5 July 2001	On this day, the Nicolas Baudin Memorial was installed at the Maritime Museum in Fremantle. Baudin, a French explorer, drew the first map of the West Australian coast.
6 July 1859	On this day, Thomas Hill Dixon was charged with embezzlement. http://nla.gov.au/nla.news-article2931657
7 July 1971	On this day, a marquetry shield was presented to Fremantle by the Borough of Weymouth in the UK. This photograph depicts that moment; shown are Premier John Tonkin, Fremantle Mayor Sir William Frederick Samson, Mrs Martyn, and Mr David Carr.	Image 149
8 July 1969	On this day, this aerial photograph of the Fishing Boat Harbour was taken.	Image 2015A
9 July 1895	On this day, at the Fremantle Police Court, Lolo Wright, a middle aged woman who said she was subject to fits when the moon was full, was charged with drunkenness. The Resident Magistrate inflicted a fine of 5s., and advised the woman to stay indoors when the changing of the moon occurred. http://nla.gov.au/nla.news-article4539868

10 July 1850	On this day, the Inquirer newspaper reported that Mr Marmion's party chased a whale in Fremantle some days ago. They were unsuccessful. This hand-coloured postcard from the 1950s depicts the Whalers Tunnel underneath the Round House.	PC00395
11 July 1971	On this day, a dedication service was held to mark the granting of armorial bearings to Fremantle.	Image 372 colour version
12 July 1899	On this day, the barques City of York and Carlisle Castle , from San Francisco and Glasgow respectively, wrecked near Fremantle during a violent storm. A memorial stands in their honour at Fremantle Cemetery.
13 July 1893	On this day, Obededen Mitchell was charged with vagrancy in Fremantle and sentenced to three months imprisonment. Mitchell was an English convict who received his Certificate of Freedom in 1881. This photograph of Fremantle was taken just three years later. http://nla.gov.au/nla.news-article71894357	Image 1802
14 July 1905	On this day, this photograph of High Street was taken. On the left is the old Union Bank (4 High Street) built in 1889 and next to it, with the turret, the Hotel Fremantle (1898). At the right is the Tramways Car barn (1905), with part of W.F. Samson's home (c1885/1887) visible beyond it.	Image 947A
15 July 1913	On this day, the Fremantle Technical School was officially opened by the Hon. Thomas Walker, MLA, Minister for Education.	Image 1660
16 July 1908	On this day, Bessie Smith married Frank Wright in Fremantle. They lived at 27 Chester Street.	Image 4823
17 July 1889	On this day, the Fremantle Bowling Club held a ball. This is a 'dance card' - programme of dances	Dance card that ladies would wear on their person at the ball. Men could reserve specific dances with a lady by writing their name inside the card.

18 July 1957	On this day, the owners of the Federal Hotel made a submission to the Fremantle City Council to convert the hotel to a casino. The plan did not go ahead, but the minutes and the media and public response make for interesting reading!	Minutes 18.07.88
19 July 1927	On this day, this photograph was taken of the Babcock and Wilcox boiler being installed on North Wharf for Shell North Fremantle.	Image 3948
20 July 1931	On this day, the first annual ball of ex-students from St Joseph's Convent was held. This photograph was taken by Izzy Orloff.	Image 2475
21 July 1923	On this day, Ezra Parry died in Fremantle. He ran a pharmacy called Parry & Co in the Atwell Arcade on Market Street. He was also a North Fremantle Councillor (1904 – 1910) and the first financial member of the Pharmaceutical Society of WA.
22 July 1907	On this day, the Fremantle Post Office, on the southern corner of Market and Shore Streets, opened for business. On the 1 st of January that year the postal service was granted Australia Post status.	Image E000197
23 July 1925	On this day, the Fremantle railway bridge collapsed. This was after a deluge of flash flooding that turned some streets into rivers.	Image 2369
24 July 1928	On this day, this photograph was taken of the first two rail tanker cars, converted from water tankers, used by Shell in the transport of bulk fuels in North Fremantle.	Image 3933
25 July 1894	On this day, works began to blast the rock bar at the mouth of the Swan River. This was part of the construction of Fremantle Harbour. A platform of planks, resting on ladder like trestles, which could be moved about, was used to enable 120 to 160 men to drill into the bar. Gelignite was used to break up the rock which was then removed by the dredge Fremantle .	Image 1799

26 July 1901	On this day, the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall (later King George V and Queen Mary) re-named South Quay to Victoria Quay, in honour of Queen Victoria. This is an image of the proclamation spoken at the quay during the christening ceremony.	Image 1758
27 July 1875	On this day, Letitia King married George Alfred Davies at Fremantle Congregational Church. They went on to have eleven children.	Image 1565B
28 July 1905	On this day, this photograph was taken of Mandurah Road, which is now known as South Terrace, looking south from Grey Street. The tramlines have been laid and the poles have been erected but the overhead electric wires are not yet in place.	Image 2427
29 July 1995	On this day, Fosseys Supermarket closed. It had been operating for thirty years at the same Adelaide Street address. This is a photograph of a roast beef dinner available at Fosseys in the upstairs cafeteria.	Image 4416
30 July 1909	On this day, J. Evans drew this illustration in the autograph book of Maggie Addison Loudon, who was for some time the hostess at the Sailors' Rest on Marine Terrace in Fremantle.	Page image
31 July 1916	On this day Prime Minister W M Hughes arrived in Fremantle and received a warm welcome from local and State dignitaries.	